However, this law allowed MFN treatment to be granted on a temporary basis if the United States negotiated a trade agreement with the country which had to be extended every three years and the president determined that the country did not restrict emigration or by a presidential waiver. Foreign investment traditionally was seen as an alternative to trade, and governments pursued agreements on investment independently of trade agreements. Organisationmondialeducommerce.The results have been impressive on both fronts. All goods trade crosses borders in a highly visible way and all governments—even those of the least developed countries—have customs officers at border posts to collect tariffs on imported products.
